Note from the Editors Regarding the Mini-review to Appear in the September-October Issue

We wish to call to your attention a new feature instituted in this issue entitled "Minireviews." These articles are not intended to be encyclopedic in scope but rather brief reviews of research interest that highlight the state-of-the-art in a particular area of Andrology. We have asked the producers of these articles to limit the number of citations to those that are most pertinent. We would like for you to communicate to the CoEditors-in-Chief your recommendations for selected topics to appear in future issues. We hope that this will become a routine part of the Journal.
